Little Dahl-lings celebrate much-loved author at Shopping Park

Parents took their youngsters onboard Rhondda Cynon Taff's Bookbus at Talbot Green Shopping Park today (13 September) to enjoy book reading sessions and activities in celebration of Roald Dahl Day.

The children listened to book readings of Roald Dahl's classics including 'Revolting Rhymes' and 'The Enormous Crocodile' led by Bookbus Librarian, Sylvia Harris, as well as being given Roald Dahl themed colouring pages and stickers to take home.

The official Roald Dahl Day marks the birthday of the popular children's author and this year celebrates the very special 50th anniversary of James and the Giant Peach.

Ceri Roberts, Youth Services Librarian for Rhondda Cynon Taff, said: "It was great to see the toddlers having such fun at the storytelling session and I think the mums enjoyed hearing their childhood favourites again too! Roald Dahl books are truly magical and I hope that today's event has captured the children's imaginations to encourage them to read in the future."

Emma Constantinou, Spokesperson for Talbot Green Shopping Park, added: "With a number of stores catering to parents, offering childrenswear, toys and baby products, it's great to be able to give something back to the mothers in the community who often visit the Park."
